CHEAP TESTIMONIALS.

What is this Chinese disease that is coming upon us? It looks like a regular epidemic of second-class coolie blatherskite, engineered by the eminent patriots of the Po Leung Kuk. The childish address presented to the Registrar-General on Wednesday in recognition of his departure on a fool's errand, but for a pleasant albeit a costly holiday at the public expense, might, for various reasons, be tolerated and good-naturedly ridiculed. Mr. J. M. Stewart-Lochhart is perfectly harmless; if he does possess sufficient brains to enable him to come indoors and escape getting wet when it rains hard, we regret we have never been able to discover in what portion of his somewhat imposing anatomy they are located. He can never be a dangerous element in the field of local politics; he doesn't know enough and never will. No more hopeless mediocrity has ever been entrusted by a British Government with what is claimed to be a mission of very considerable importance for the commercial interests of Hongkong. Coming events, as Governor Sir William Robinson is likely enough to discover sooner than he expects, will justify our opinions. We repeat that the Registrar-General is perfectly harmless. It is, of course, most gratifying to us to find the present Protector of Chinese so much a perma grata with the Chinese "gentry and merchants" who signed that wonderful address. Quite a legion of leading Chinese traders of Hongkong have written to us repudiating any sympathy with the self-styled Chinese "gentry and merchants" who, they allege, are mostly ex-coolies who act as compradors and shroffs in foreign honours. Very sad, if true—and in some cases at least we happen to know it is true. We have never heard, although always in the heart of busy, every-day life in Hongkong, what deep gratitude the Chinese "gentry and merchants" really owe the Registrar-General for doing very little for the handsome salary paid him by the taxpayers of the colony. We don't even know, it may be our benighted ignorance, of course) that there is any glory attached to the banner which, if it means anything, has apparently been unfurled in order to revive the infamous Chinese coolie traffic to South America which was suppressed as a disgraceful scandal on humanity a quarter of a century ago. We were not acquainted with TAIN T'ING-HUN, "whose virtues surpassed those of all other men of his time"—the nobility and gentry must have specially chartered an unemployed chair-coolie to fix up their translations—and we are only anxious to know to what sacred spot this almighty wonder of a bygone age took his lute and what he did with it when he got it there. Anyhow, as Mr. STEWART-LOCHHART never had a lute, and wouldn't know what to do with such an incumbrance even if the Chinese nobility and gentry generously cumulated him a specimen of that fiery and untamed article—only fancy "Johnny" arrayed in a lute, and all the rest left to imagination, ye gods!—we fall to see any connection between the Registrar-General and the late lamented Mr. TAIN T'ING-HUN. And what in the name of all that's good and true the Secretary To, "whose pure moderation was beyond that of the rest of mankind" and who appears to have been a MERTHUSALAN, when NOAH was a little boy, has to do with the puffy and verbose youth whose only claim to notoriety is contained in the expression "Po Leung Kuk," and a proposed doubtful coolie trade that both the Chinese and British Governments will unhesitatingly decline to acknowledge, is more than our limited thinking capacity is able to grapple with. Where was Moses when the candle went out? When Mr. STEWART-LOCHHART lit the candle, say the self-styled Chinese gentry and merchants, "nothing has been left in darkness." This is like a comic scene out of "Aunt Jack." We are glad that the departed "boss" of a Government department that has outlived its usefulness, "raises men out of the soil, mires and places them in uncomfortable beds; makes crooked justice wholly straight; pulls up the weeds from among the mulberries and the hemp; refuses to draw back from fear of angry words and hatred"—are you listening Mr. WHITEHEAD?—regards the Tartars and the Southerners as one family and disregards the gold-melting cannibals; and, oh! yes, we can't go on in this strain much longer or there will be a typhoon—"his heart is like water and our saying so need cause him no shame." Mud!

It is must be extremely gratifying to the hard-pressed rate-payers of this colony to know on the authority of these Chinese gentry and merchants that an official whom they have educated, trained and handsomely remunerated to do useful work for the colony's best interests, "has searched thoroughly and studied all parts of the language and of the literature of the Middle Kingdom and has assimilated the knowledge which he has collected," that "he is not cramped in a corner nor hampered by present customs," and that he, "owing to the richness of the resources of his mind and in his skill in the treatment of all subjects," resembles KA, the Long-headed. It is likewise important to be informed that this head-clerk in a British registry office has "waded and hunted through essays and records and striven to attain the exceptional ability for composition displayed by Tsar Tsao-chi," and that he regards the art of literature and the art of Government as equally and hard study and diligent protection of the people as of the same importance." When a lad at Edinburgh University Mr. STEWART-LOCHHART attained the proud position of Greek medallist; he has, or had, the reputation of being fairly proficient in Chinese vernacular. Our regret is that this highly paid servant of the public should, in his endeavour to emulate KA, the Long-headed, and become an expert on the flute of TAIN T'ING-HUN, have neglected the English language and the ordinary principles of business procedure. The Registrar-General's speech on the Po Leung Kuk Ordinance at the last meeting of the Legislative Council is a revelation of what fools some mortals can be when they don't know any better. "Harassed by the duties of his office he feels no self-pity at starting to travel to 10,000 li." Not much! logically, if a man were harassed by the duties of his office, he would only be too glad to get a six months' holiday at the public expense, to say nothing of the possible C.M.G.-ship. But we don't expect either logic or commonsense—in fact nothing but blatant and grossly offensive flattery to foreigners when they make a big pretence of despising—from coolie-bred self-constituted Chinese gentry. "The Registrar-General has taken the reins in his hand, and he does not decline the task before him of ceaseless argument." So mote it be! If he had declined, the probability is that his Chinese admirers would almost to a certainty have had an opportunity of employing those transcendent talents from which they find it so very hard to part. Hongkong can very easily spare Mr. STEWART-LOCHHART, his absence will make no appreciable difference to the flow of current events, if he never returned he would hardly be missed. As a matter of fact he has gone, and the Hon. SAMUEL TAYLOR, who has no acquaintance whatever with the Po Leung Kuk or KA, the Big-headed, reigns in his stead. Le Roi est mort, vive le Roi!

It was doubtless kindly meant by these Chinese gentlemen and scholars to donate the Registrar-General a book—a Chinese classic, it is fair to assume, as from such a distinguished and select source any frivolous publication of the nature of "A History of the Po Leung Kuk" or "The Double-headed Dragon" or "The 'Maid of Pechili' would have been distinctly out of place. But there happens to be a slight rule which the British Government most rigidly adheres to, that no public officer can accept anything in the shape of a present without express permission. Perhaps his Excellency was complacent in any case, we do not grudge Mr. LOCKHART the opportunity afforded him of comparing himself and his official career with those of "SHAM LEE" and of his light burden of books—the only baggage which he took with him from the Western countries; or of PAU HAN-SHUK, who with hands unstained by official perquisites brought not one inkstone from Tain Chau." Inkstones, from the Mandarin point of view, are not negotiable instruments; dollars are, as the whole of the gentry and merchants who have appended their distinguished autographs to this extraordinary exhibition of senile gush must be quite well aware.

THE late "Abington" Baird, millman, jockey, prize-winning, friend of Mrs. Langtry, and waster generally, was, strange to say, very fond of having high-class literature read to him. He particularly admired Shakespeare, and on one occasion his "reader" (it might have been Lily Langtry) was going through his favourite play, "Troilus and Cressida," when he suddenly interrupted, and, pulling out his watch, said, "There's only one thing in the world I like better than Shakespeare, and that is a g.H." There's one due in half-an-hour at the King's Anchor, and if I go now I shall be just in time for the start. In three hours I'll be back, and you can finish." He returned within the time, and heard out the play.

THE London correspondent of the Asian supplies that paper with the gist of the letter which was written by Dr. Lombard Tanner, brother of the well-known Irish politician, who committed suicide in London last month. It is sufficiently interesting to bear reproduction:—"I am tired of living and therefore have made up my mind to die. I think suicide is quite justifiable and in strict accordance with all economic laws. I think that instead of being made an offence against the law every facility should be given to any one who desired to leave this world of doing it in a comfortable, satisfactory, painless manner. I have no religion, and abhor so-called Christianity. I therefore beg most earnestly that I may not be buried, but that my body be sent or taken to one of the schools of medicine for dissection. I think that such a wish should be granted, and I think that if by this action of mine I make a movement, against such barbarous practices in the name of religion, I shall not have lived in vain. You are brought into this world without your consent, I therefore do not see why you should not leave it when you like. I have intended to do so for the last three months, as my energy is gone and I can't battle against the world as I used to. If there be another world, which I very much doubt, then I will take my chance and start afresh. What I need is rest, and I am so weary and tired of it all."

SCENE, a Parisian restaurant. Enter a fussy old gentleman, who, after choosing his table, beckons to the waiter and says confidentially, "I want a really good dinner. Here's your check-forehand. Now, what do you recommend?" The waiter, looking cautiously round and whispering in the client's ear: "Go somewhere else!"

A LATE telegram to an Indian paper states that there are rumors from Kandahar that Ishak Khan, the leader of the rising in 1888, has crossed the Oxus from Bokhara territory, and that the Amir is concentrating his troops against him. His chances of success are smaller now than in 1888, when the Amir's power was not so firmly established.

If you have been so unfortunate as to get paint stains on your clothing, they can be removed with turpentine while they are fresh; if they are not discovered until they are old and dry, try chloroform; first cover the spot with a little olive oil or butter, and rub until the paint is somewhat softened, and then apply the chloroform until the stain disappears.

"BOOK-BEARING" as dispensed at Sydney University, says "Sappho Smith" in Sydney Bulletin, "figures and when you reflect upon how many B.A.s and M.A.s there are now about in the back-woods, or advertising for press-work (a sign of weakness in itself—for your budding journalist always hawks his long wares), the bill of University costs looks very long indeed. The 70 people who took degrees in 1890 cost the State £580 apiece!"

RUMOURS having got afloat that our old friend Mrs. Brown-Potter was about to leave the stage Reveries writer interviewed Mr. T.V. Twining, who made all the ladies in the house, and was informed that there was absolutely no foundation for the reports. As a matter of fact and as has been already stated in these columns Mrs. Potter commences a season with Mr. Twining at the Corinthian Theatre, Calcutta, in October. She has booked dates right up to 1896.

A WEALTHY German merchant had a daughter, who, on account of her excessive plainness, had not met with a suitor. One day, however, an English gentleman of the name of Itzig applied to her father for the hand of the daughter. The father saw at a glance that Itzig was poor, and only wanted the girl for the sake of her money. He therefore said:—"I will give you my daughter to wife and deposit 100,000 marks in the bank, but with the proviso that you do not break into the capital until after the lapse of ten years."

Itzig, rather disappointed, made reply:—"Had you not better give me the 100,000 marks and deposit your daughter Sarah in the bank?" Itzig was ejected.

WE note that the Victorian Government proposes to reduce the salaries of Governor, Ministers, and legislators thus:—Governor, from £10,000 to £7,000, a saving of £3,000; Ministers, a 20 per cent reduction, or from £14,000 to £11,200, a saving of £2,800; 95 members from £700 to £560 apiece, or from £68,500 to £53,750, a saving of £14,750; total thus saved, £10,550. The N.S.W. Government, observes the Bulletin, could similarly retrench to the extent of £12,650, but proposes to leave the Governor's and members' salaries severely alone, while only taking off £1,500 from Ministerial salaries, which are to be cut down along with the 10 per cent taken from all the better-paid Civil Servants. N.S.W. Ministers now get £13,000 a year, and are to be kept on at £11,700. The figures will then run:—Governor, £7,000; Ministers, £11,700; 141 members at £560 each, £78,960 total, £64,000. Or, £24,000 a year more for these items than Victoria has to provide.

THIS excerpt from our very contemporary the Calcutta Asian:—"A rose by any other name would smell as sweet and to might a hering if it were not a German herring. But after the revelations which were made the other day in the Westminster County Court prudent individuals will steer clear of the brand. The action was brought by a German manufacturer who had not been paid for some time of herrings 'Made in Germany,' which he had sent over to a City restaurant, Mr. Lingin, a proprietor of the establishment, had had a rough time since he received the consignment. The prevailing belief was that the herrings formed part of the ill-fated provisions left over from the Ark. 'Dey smell de shoppo out and I would get dree months if I sell them. I never smell anything dot was so high,' was how the restaurant keeper put it in court, and his subordinate loyally corroborated him by saying, 'Mein Herr, if you no get rid of dem smellerest fish as ever I smelled we will all die of de cholera.' The ironical part of it was that the details were known as 'delicatessen.' The box opened in court produced a panic. The case went for the defendant."

THE Sydney Bulletin:—"For years it has been a common saying in Melbourne that any well-known 'duffer' could get a big overhaul, or an advance on anything, at one or more banks, whilst the unpretentious trader would be sternly reminded that his account was £5 on the pound."

Quite a lot of money was swallowed in the form of champagne. Think of the mushroom men who drank French fire by the bucketful during boom time! They didn't pay for it. Their temporary wealth was borrowed from the banks, and although the bank managers have not been so ready to do this for some time, and the use of depositors' cash until the supply runs out. It is absurd to say that all the money must be in the country. Some of it went to the absentee holders of city and suburban land who were glad to sell at fictitious prices.
